Introduction

Sausalito is San Francisco's favorite getaway, just a quick boat ride across the bay. It has something for everyone: a massive model miniature ocean plus the real thing almost always in view, spiffy shops, rebuilt speakeasies, extraordinary views in almost every direction, good seafood, cliff-hanging mansions, a fort, and a kid's touch-me-please outdoor exploratorium, all interwoven with local history and lore.

And it's all a short ride across the magnificent Golden Gate Bridge by car or bus, or past Alcatraz across a breathtaking bay by ferry—you can even bring or rent a bike!

If you want to stay for several days, there is a brand new resort at old Fort Baker, lots of hotels in town, and enough different restaurants to last for weeks. So let's start at an excellently laid out small downtown display center; see the park and stores; walk the waterfront; climb the back steps and paths; head east to the sea model, wharves, and historic boat-building site, then end up at the old fort grounds, the resort, and a super outdoor fun park for kids!
