

Beijing For Kids

VISUAL TRAVEL TOURS

Maps Show You Where... We Show You Why!

Table of Contents

Cover

Tour Summary

Introduction

Tips

Chapter 1 - Beijing Zoo & Aquarium

Chapter 2 - Out & About in Beijing

Chapter 3 - Shopping for Toys & Souvenirs

Chapter 4 - From Athletes to Opera

Maps

Author Biography

Publisher

Tour Summary

Beijing fairly teems with activities for youngsters! They can climb the Great Wall, eat fried crickets, and look for silly signs. Inside the zoo, they can see the pandas, then visit the world's largest inland aquarium. At Beijing's biggest flea market, shop for the latest toys, and browse thousands of items. Kids can start a photo collection of unusual wastebaskets... chill out in a park... work out on street side exercise equipment... catch a performance by Chinese acrobats or the Peking Opera... the list is endless!

Back to Table of Contents

Introduction

When it comes to fun things to do while on vacation, you can't beat Beijing. China's capital is fun for the young--and the young at heart.

Beijing offers a myriad of activities for children. Just about any place you go will have activities that appeal to kids.

They range from climbing on the Great Wall to panda watching at the zoo to ringing bells at the Big Bell or Yonghegong Lama temples.

Boys and girls can dress up as emperors and empresses at places like the Summer Palace and Forbidden City.

They can play in a park or watch acrobats perform. And don't forget flying kites at Tian'anmen Square.

Beijing attractions, including parks, sometimes have themed or unusual wastebaskets.

The Beijing Aquarium has thousands of fish and other sealife.

The king of the jungle plays second fiddle to the panda at the Beijing Zoo.

Youngsters can get up close and personal with fish at the Beijing Aquarium.

Start a photo collection of silly signs to show back home.

Adventuresome eaters may want to try unusual snacks, such as deep fried silk worms on kebabs.

All sorts of souvenirs can be found at Beijing's biggest flea market.

Back to Table of Contents