St. Augustine, America's Oldest City

Forget what you learned in school. Ponce de Leon discovered America in 1513, right here in St. Augustine, Florida.

Rich in history, heritage and hauntings, St. Augustine is a microcosm of the American experience.

Hi, I'm Pamela Watson, your guide for this tour of America's oldest, and some say most haunted, city.

Located 40 miles south of Jacksonville off Interstate 95, but centuries away in character...

...St. Augustine blends an old-world atmosphere with casual Florida living to create a European-style destination, but without the jet lag.

On this tour, we'll explore the heritage and architectural influences of the Spanish Quarter...

...see the role Christianity has played in this Spanish-Catholic colony...

...walk the cobblestone streets of Old Town...

...which has some of the oldest and most haunted houses in America...

...learn about Henry Flagler, the 19th-century railroad tycoon who changed Florida...

...and visit Lincolnton, where civil rights activists helped change our nation.

We'll even mix in some Old Florida attractions - just for fun!
